WOAI TV "CONCEPT HOMES" IN SMITHSON VALLEY

WOAI TV broadcast station, along with its popular daytime television program the San Antonio Living Show, have two "Concept Homes" currently under construction in Mountain Springs Ranch, located just off FM 311 in Smithson Valley. They have partnered with a select group of participants from the area to present these two extraordinary "Concept Homes" with features that rival the latest in design trends, along with state-of-the-art materials and high-tech products and services.

Guadalupe Valley Telecommunications Cooperative (GVTC), as a participating sponsor, is excited to deliver "Smart House" technology to the two homes using its Fiber-To-The-Home Technology network.

This fiber-powered system provides virtually unlimited bandwidth, which means ultra fast high-speed Internet connections, along with crystal clear cable television. Plus it can handle all the advanced technology we've heard about for years, but until now, could not provide due to bandwidth constraints. Online services such as interactive gaming, HDTV, DVR, video conferencing, streaming media and all the gee-whiz services that require huge amounts of bandwidth will be showcased at the new homes.

In all GVTC FTTH subdivisions, the customer is well positioned with huge amounts of bandwidth and speeds to easily handle today's applications. The network design essentially "future-proofs" these areas to handle those things we have yet to dream about with potential broadband speeds up to 100Mbps, once the right electronics become available.

Progress on the homes can be seen by clicking on the Concept Home tab at WOAI TV's website www.woai.com

Every weekend, from April 29th to May 29th, visitors will be able to walk through these homes and "Wow" over the many amenities presented by all of the participating sponsors. Spectators will pay a small nominal fee to view the homes with all proceeds going directly to the Children's Miracle Network and San Antonio Food Bank.
